

Thank you for your support!

The amaryllis is the signature plant of the Huntington Society of Canada. It represents the vitality of our organization, and the hope that we will soon find a cure. With your help, we will win the fight against Huntington disease.

The Orange Sovereign is a top quality premium grade 26-28 centimetre bulb. Its tall, green stalks are topped by an exotic burst of orange blooms. These bulbs are specially imported from Holland in limited quantities.

Each kit comes in an attractive giftbox, and contains:

- Amaryllis bulb
- Pot and saucer
- Soil
- Care instructions

The plant will bloom 6 to 8 weeks after planting. The bulb can be stored in a dark, dry spot at 14 to 16 degrees Celsius until January or February for late planting.

Huntington disease devastates the individual and the family...

Huntington disease is a fatal neurodegenerative disorder. It progressively destroys both mind and body, eventually taking away the ability to speak, walk, and even eat without help.

Huntington disease is also a disease of families. Every child of a person with HD has a 50 % risk of inheriting the disease. One in every 1,000 Canadians are touched by HD, whether they have the disease themselves, look after someone who does, or have a friend or relative with HD.

Currently there is no cure for Huntington's. However, with recent research discoveries we've never had more reason for optimism.

Your contribution is special...

Proceeds from the purchase of an "Orange Sovereign" amaryllis plant goes directly to vital programmes in research, for a cure for tomorrow, and family services for people coping with Huntington disease today

- You can support "cutting-edge" research being done right here in Canada ...

The Huntington Society of Canada provides funding to support leading HD researchers in centres across Canada who are searching for treatments and for a cure for HD. A cure for HD could be as close as one step away. Research is ongoing, and, more than ever before, maintaining momentum in the fight is critically important.

- You can help support families NOW...

The Huntington Society of Canada has a national network of professionally trained Individual and Family Services staff that support and assist families living and coping with the disease. Your gift will help ensure that these people can get the support they need to deal with this terrible disease.
